

LICENSING AND INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS OF THE SUSTAINABILITY REPORTING TOOL

THE SOFTWARE TOOL IS PROVIDED UNDER THE TERMS OF THIS AGREEMENT. THE USE, REPRODUCTION OR DISTRIBUTION OF THE SOFTWARE PRODUCT ACCOUNTS FOR THE ACCEPTANCE OF THIS AGREEMENT BY THE RECIPIENT.

1. DEFINITIONS

“Contribution” refers to the action of providing the initial code and documentation, any changes or additions made to the software product.

“Contributor” refers to any party distributing the program, initial development team of any contributing developer afterwards.

“Software product” refers to the set of contributions distributed with this agreement.

“Recipient” refers to the person receiving this software product under this agreement.

2. GRANT OF RIGHTS

Each contributor to the software product grants to the recipient non-exclusive, worldwide and royalty-free rights to distribute, modify and utilize the software product as seen fit by the recipient, following the terms of this agreement.

3. NO WARRANTY

The software product is provided on an “as is” basis and the determination of appropriateness of use and distribution of the software product relies with the recipient. The contributors distributing the software product have no further responsibility in the maintenance of the software product once it is received by the recipient.

4. CREDITING

Shall the product be used, the names of the members of the development team shall be credited in a way similar to the following example:

“Work utilizes an open source SuSAF workshop tool produced by Sami Kohvakka and Varpu Huhtinen in a capstone course of LUT University in 2021”.

5. COMMERCIALIZATION

If the software Product is included as a part of a commercial product, the commercial contributor takes responsibility for compensating and defending any other contributors of the software product against any type of loss, damages and costs that may arise from claims, lawsuits or other legal actions brought by a third party in connection with the commercial distribution of the software product. Initial contributors and subsequent contributors shall not be liable for any damages that may occur, indirectly or directly from the use of the software product.